

POVERTY

BASIC PROVISIONS

Over the past two decades, 20 million Bangladeshis have been able to overcome poverty.

The number of working women has doubled, and the birth rate has dropped significantly. The country's clothing industry is developing rapidly and currently Bangladesh is second only to China in the production of ready-made readymade dresses.

The example of Bangladesh inspires hope, creates new aspirations and offers innovative approaches to poverty eradication

Perhaps the experience of Bangladesh provides answers to many questions. Once considered one of the poorest countries in the world, today Bangladesh has moved into the category of low-income countries, which have managed to significantly reduce poverty over the lifetime of the current generation, mainly through innovation. Signs of progress can be seen in everything from the commissioning of modern factories and the use of innovative technologies, such as solar-powered irrigation facilities, to the migration to Dhaka of the country's poorest people, driven by hope and desire to work in garment factories.
